A NARROW ESCAPE.

MONROE HUNTINGTON INJURED.

Was Stepped on by a Horse and Lingered Near Death for Several Days.

Monroe Huntington, the eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Huntington, came about as near death on Thursday of last week as is usual in such cases and then got out of it alive. As it is he has a broken arm, a piece of his skull gone and a countless number of bruises by which to remember his experience.

He got his injuries by getting under the feet of his father's horse in the stable and as he was all alone with the animal nobody knows just how the affair occurred.

Mrs. Huntington and the boy had been in the garden in the afternoon and about four o'clock the lady went into the house to prepare supper and the boy went to the stable. Soon after Mrs. Huntington heard cries from the stable and hastening in that direction she was greeted by a sight that would be calculated to make any mother's heart stand still. Monroe stood in the stable door literally covered with blood and cuts.

He was taken into the house and hastily examined and a surgeon summoned, but it was hardly expected that he would survive until a physician arrived. When the doctor examined him he found his right wrist broken, a piece of the bone chipped from his skull near the right temple, his left arm so badly bruised and swollen that it could not be told whether the bones were injured, while his face and body were so badly bruised that there was hardly a square inch on his body that was not discolored.

The doctor held but very little hope for the boy's recovery, and it was not until Sunday morning that his parents began to feel at all easy in their minds, by which time he had begun to show signs of mending.

Just how the little fellow got so badly bruised up can only be surmised from the fact that he stated at first that he had got onto the horse's back as it stood in the stall, after which it is presumed that he fell off the animal, which no doubt frightened it and caused it to prance about in the stall and step on and kick the boy repeatedly. Luckily he retained consciousness through it all and managed to get out from under the horse's feet or there is no doubt that he would have met his death right there.

Our Water Supply.

Some discussion has occurred during the past two weeks concerning the purity of the spring water which it is proposed to pump into the water mains after the system now in course of construction is completed and accepted.

Dr. Frank Pomainville sent a sample of water to Chicago to be tested and received a report to the effect that it was not fit for use as a drinking water, on account of organic matter held in suspension in the fluid.

When this report got into the hands of some of our news mongers, they immediately jumped to the conclusion that the spring water was unfit for use and by careful attention to the matter managed to stir up quite a feeling.

Now, as a matter of fact, the water examined was not the spring water that it is proposed to use in the water works. The water sent in was from what is known as the Witter fish pond, the overflow from which goes past the waterworks cistern and has been used to test the pipes of the system, the spring water not having been piped to the reservoir when the testing was commenced.

Upon being interviewed, Dr. Pomainville stated that one could see by the appearance of this water that it was not fit for use, but that he had it tested merely out of curiosity. Since that time he has sent in a sample of the spring water, from which he has not heard at this writing, but he says that he has no doubt that it will prove all right.

The water that will be used in the waterworks will be drawn from the lower side of the road and will flow through closed drains to the reservoir so that there will be no possibility of it becoming contaminated from external causes, and will not be the overflow from the fish pond, as some seem to imagine.

Alice of Old Vincennes.

On Monday next this story, which is Maurice Thompson's best literary effort will begin in The Milwaukee Journal. It is admittedly the author's most successful novel, and is being talked about everywhere. The great historical novel will be printed daily in The Journal until completed. This is, indeed a rare chance for state readers to get this valuable book, together with The Journal, at the minimum cost. Give your order early to the newsdealer so as not to miss the opening chapter. If there is no news agent in your town: send order direct to The Journal Company, Milwaukee, Wis.

To Farmers and Others.

The following circular has been addressed to farmers and others throughout the county who can assist in making our exhibit at the state fair a success this fall:

Take Notice.

This circular is addressed to those parties who can by their assistance and co-operation, do a share toward making our exhibit at the state fair this fall a success.

At the last meeting of the county board an appropriation was made by that body for the purpose of insuring that Wood county be represented at state fair. The appropriation was not large, but it was enough so that by every man interested taking little trouble we will be able to make an exhibit that will be equal to anything to be seen there.

Wood county soil is among the most productive in the state and our products are not only greatly diversified but also of unusual quality as a general thing. These are some of the factors that should contribute toward making our exhibit a good one. If you have anything on your place that you think worthy to exhibit, notify your chairman of the fact and have the product, whatever it is, sent in. This applies to all kinds of farm produce, either fruit, vegetables or grain, and do not only take an interest in the matter yourself, but try to interest your neighbor also.

The advantage to the county in having a good exhibit at the state fair can be readily seen. People will be there from all over the state, and these products will be examined by parties who take an interest in such matters. If a man be looking for a good place to locate in the farming business he will certainly see that Wood county is a good place. The more farmers who locate in the county, the more valuable each piece of land becomes, no matter if it is already in a high state of cultivation. Those who have land to sell will also be benefited, for there is no better way of advertising the advantage of a county.

For further information in the matter consult your town chairman, John Juno of Marshfield, or L. M. Nash of Grand Rapids and everything possible will be done to assist you.

Very respectfully, L. M. NASH.

School Census.

The census of school children for the city of Grand Rapids has been completed by Oswald Menzel and his assistant, Clark Jenkins, and the following is the summary of what they found:

First ward, 201; second ward, 261; third ward, 126; fourth ward, 232; fifth ward, 241; sixth ward, 201; seventh ward, 184; eighth ward, 173; total, 1,619. This is an increase of 142 over last year, the whole number then being 1,477. Out of this number last year about 1,011 attended schools in the city, 155 being in the Catholic schools, 37 in the German Lutheran and the remainder at the public.

The increase in the number of school children would indicate that our city has enjoyed a very healthy growth during the past year. While it is customary to figure out the increase by this method, the figures are generally found to be misleading, so that each reader may figure it out to suit himself.

Cranberry Growers to Meet.

A circular has been issued by W. H. Fitch, secretary of the Wisconsin State Cranberry Growers' association, which gives the date for the coming convention of the Wisconsin Cranberry Growers' association as well as the program so far as laid out at the present time.

The date for the meeting is Tuesday, August 19th, and it will be held at the Gaynor-Blackstone hotel near Cranmoor, where the experimental station is located. The usual picnic dinner will be served which will be under the charge of Mrs. M. O. Potter and Mrs. Andrew Searls.

Among the topics that will be discussed will be an address, "The Cost of Production," by Charles Briere, "Planting of Vines," by ex-President A. C. Bennett, and "Canadian Fruit Law," by Judge John A. Gaynor.

The meeting this year promises to be largely attended, as the social features of the summer session bring out a lot of people who do not ordinarily attend the business sessions of the organization.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses were issued by County Clerk Kenne during the past week:

August Klanch and Anna Lahr, both of Marshfield.
Michael Tiry and Rose Pitnarsch, both of Marshfield.

W. T. Bauer of Stevens Point and Margaret Nann White of Pittsville.
Forest L. Blake of Tomah and Anna McGlynn of Babcock.
Geo. F. Woodhouse of Manitoba and Mary E. Tarbox of Pittsville.

Business Opportunities.

The city clerk is in receipt of a letter from V. R. Coon of Milwaukee in reference to the financial outlook for an electric railway between Stevens Point and Grand Rapids. He claims to represent Boston capital desiring investment in electric railway projects in Wisconsin.—Stevens Point Gazette.

If you want to be comfortable during the heated term buy a quick meal range from the Centralia Hardware company and you will bless the day that you invested. Every thing that can be found at a first class hardware store is kept here.

DRAIN SWAMP LAND

RECLAIM BUENA VISTA MARSH

That is the Object of Illinois Capitalists.—Other Items of News Briefly Told.

A party of Illinois capitalists who have purchased large tracts of marsh lands east of this city are making preparations to drain the land and make farms out of it. The work will involve the expenditure of thousands of dollars. In speaking of the matter the Stevens Point Journal says: When interviewed today by a Journal reporter one of the prominent holders and managers of the lands stated that they could not definitely announce their plans as yet, but gave assurance that if carried out the enterprise now under consideration would require the expenditure of vast capital and time in perfecting it.

From other sources it is learned that the proposed plan is about as outlined below. Under present conditions the lands are nearly valueless, except for hay purposes. To give them value it will be necessary to drain from them the water which now covers that area during the greater part of the year. If so drained the soil is fertile and productive and the land can be sold at greatly advanced prices.

In order to do this completely and successfully, several large canals or drainage ditches will be constructed through these lands. The largest of these will be about 30 feet wide at the top, 20 feet at the bed and of a depth to successfully drain the land to a satisfactory depth. It will be from six to ten miles long, a matter yet to be determined, and which will be largely influenced by the construction of the first part.

The canal will be built on lines similar to several constructed by the same parties, with others, in Illinois, notably one near Kankakee, of about the same dimensions. If successful the projects will throw open to cultivation thousands of acres of good farming lands, and should mean much for the future of the town affected and of the county.

A Small Fire.—Fire was discovered in the back end of the Leader office on Thursday evening about nine o'clock, and an alarm brought out the engine and a large crowd of people. The fire caught from the exhaust pipe of the gasoline engine and had probably been smoldering two or three hours when discovered by Mr. Cooley, who happened to be at work in the office. Owing to the space between the siding and plaster being filled with sawdust, very little headway was made and when a stream was procured a few boards were ripped off and the fire extinguished. Some delay was caused by the hose cart being taken back to the engine house, the parties in charge having been informed that the fire had been extinguished. No damage resulting from the mistake, however.

Injured with Dynamite.—Two little boys at Junction City, the sons of Frank Tadvall, were injured on Sunday by an explosion of dynamite. Their father had been blasting stumps with the stuff and left some of it lying about and the boys got hold of it and amused themselves by playing with it. By some means some of it exploded and the result was that the older boy, named Frank, lost the thumb and first finger from his left hand and was badly bruised about the hip. The younger boy was not injured so seriously but was quite badly burned. It would seem as though any person who had used either dynamite or dynamite caps would see from the destruction that it is wrought by the explosion that it is not the proper thing for children to play with.

A Delicate Operation.—An operation was performed on Leo Choppie, the 17 year old son of John Choppie, on Tuesday for perityphlitis, and at last reports the young man getting along nicely. The operation was performed by Dr. Humphrey, assisted by Dr. E. P. Wallace of Shawano. The boy had been sick for some time and when operated on was found to be in a very serious condition. He lives near Nekoosa, but is now at the home of N. Boucher on the west side, where he will remain until he recovers sufficiently to be moved.

Blue Rock Scores.—The members of the gun club held three events at their grounds on Sunday afternoon the following being the scores. The first event, 25 birds, C. Kellogg 13, Nash 21, Mason 20, Conway 15, Scott 20, Ridgman 20, Church 15, Drumb 20. Second event, 25 birds, Kellogg 15, Nash 21, Mason 18, Conway 15, Scott 23, Ridgman 15, Church 20, Drumb 25. Third event, 25 birds, Kellogg 15, Nash 19, Mason 21, Conway 17, Scott 19, Ridgman 13, Church 17, Drumb 20.

Making Fire Map.—A. L. Craig has been in the city the past week engaged in making a fire map of the city of Grand Rapids. Mr. Craig represents the Sanborn Fire Map Publishing Co. whose publications are generally used by insurance men. The maps are printed in different colors to show the different material used in the construction of buildings about the city. Insurance men also state that there will be correction made in the rates in this city.

A young Prisoner.—Willie Mecham who lives with his mother in the town of Hansen was before Justice Brown on Tuesday on a charge of having stolen a scythe valued at $2.50, the complaining witness being Julius Huse. Owing to the boy's extreme youth, he being but 10 years old, and other mitigating circumstances the judge discharged him with a severe reprimand.

Attended the Saengerfest.—About 115 tickets were sold out of here on Sunday to parties who went to Merrill to attend the Saengerfest. Several also went out on Saturday. They report about the usual time at such places, the weather being very pleasant and the park at Merrill being an ideal spot for such an entertainment. A large crowd was in attendance. The 1903 Saengerfest will be held at Ashland.

Receiving Pickles.—The first pickles of the season were brought in to the pickle factory on Saturday and since then some have been brought in every day. F. H. Witters of Green Bay has charge of the plant at this point this season. Although the acreage planted is not as large as last year it is expected that on account of the more favorable weather the vats will be filled before the season is over.

Found a Leak.—After much digging the workmen found a large leak in the water main on High street near Oak. The place where the water came through was about two inches wide, and allowed quite a stream of water to escape. Engineer Pfeiffer states that there are several other places about town where repairs will have to be made before the work on the system will be accepted.

Wm. Barnes Sells Out.—William Barnes, the west side confectioner, sold out his stock on Tuesday to A. C. Otto, who will take charge of the place immediately. As Mr. Otto is well known and well liked in this community there is no question but that he will make a success in his new venture. Mr. Otto will add a stock of drugs to the store in the near future.

Buffalo Bill Coming.—The world famous Buffalo Bill will visit this city with his Wild West show on August 28th should nothing intervene in the meantime to switch him off the track. It is reported that Ringling Brothers are to be here in September with their gigantic show, but nothing can be learned to verify the report.

Still at It.—Those people who gave a sigh of relief last season when the waterworks gang got off their street find that they were a trifle premature, as a gang of men are going over the pipes again and digging up each joint wherever there is thought to be a leak, putting the streets in almost as bad a condition as they were last year.

Lost Four Dollars.—Dick Harvey, who is engaged in filing at the mill of Grand Rapids Lumber company, lost what small change he had in his pockets one day last week by some person entering the room where his clothes were hanging and going through the pockets. Luckily he only had about four dollars with him.

Ice Cream Social.—The Willing Heart society of the Scandinavian Moravian church will give a fair and social on Thursday evening in the Corriveau & Garrison store building. Ice cream and cake or coffee and cake, price 10c. All are cordially invited. Come and see.

Caught a Thief.—The sheriff from Outagamie county was here on Tuesday to take in charge Hugh O'Neil who was captured at Port Edwards and was charged with stealing seventy-five dollars from a saloon keeper. He departed for Appleton with his charge the same morning.

Indigestion arises from a weakened condition of the stomach, caused by over-eating indigestible or improperly cooked food, alcoholic drinks, etc., thus exhausting nerve force and the stomach resulting in indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness and constipation. A cure of these complaints can be effected in a short time by the regular use of Re-Go, the famous Tonic Laxative Syrup. The expense is only 25 or 50 cents and is certainly a modest doctor bill. Re-Go is sold by Sam Church.

Save the Timber.

The Antigo News Item protests against the methods of some of the settlers who go to the north country to make farms. They select some hardwood lands, thinking the timber will pay for the land. They have an easy time cutting the timber, selling the logs and leaving the tops on the ground. They clear a little spot and chop over the farm. Then comes the time when they have no more timber to sell, no matter how high the price. Nor have they any land cleared for agriculture. This practice it condemns. They should cut for sale but sparingly and clear every foot as fast as cut over. The other way, they get easy cash for the first cutting, but the second clearing they have to do without getting pay for it, while they have no farming land to fall back on. This is eminently good advice.

There are some queer experiences awaiting the settlers in that northern country. In Eagle River, the electric light plant buys stumps of the farmers thereabouts, paying good prices, and feeds them to its furnaces by means of carriers. They use no other wood and the farmers may be seen hauling their stumps to market at a profit, besides being rid of them.

In many sections, the call for crushed stone for roadmaking and concrete is so large that farmers sell their boulders to the crushers. These pests of the farmers even in the gravelly sections, may yet become a source of profit to the land owner as well as a blessing to the roads of the country.

There are large areas all over the country, in the older as well as the newer sections, which will never be profitable for anything but timber. The thrifty farmer should see that these patches of otherwise useless ground are replanted with suitable trees. The dry sidehill which cannot be plowed will raise larch trees, which, in ten or fifteen years, will make the finest kind of fence posts. Willows may be made profitable in another piece, and so on to the end. All that is wanted is intelligence in selecting the trees to plant and a disposition to make the best use of all the land to be had. The people of the north are in a position to understand this and avail themselves of the knowledge. The newspapers which talk this up are doing their communities excellent service. Save the timber standing; use sparingly and plant suitable trees wherever there is place. There is growing wealth in this rule.—Milwaukee Journal.

"Kaffe Klaatich."

In this city there exists, as in all other towns, a class of people who seem to have no other mislive in life than to talk about their neighbors. There is no point too trivial for them to take up and enlarge upon. These people are the ones seldom found at home when called upon, instead they are out on a gossiping expedition, to tell what they do know, what they surmise and to obtain new data for further scandal. Such people are termed "Kaffe Klaatichs."

A young lady is walking on the street and is joined by a young man. In their joviality they laugh and joke with each other. The "Kaffe Klaatich" makes a note of the affair and in the next meeting of her clan all kinds of scandal is indulged in.

A married man is seen talking to a woman. This in itself is entirely innocent, but in the eyes of the "Kaffe Klaatich" is a most heinous offense and no time is lost in spreading the report that Mr. So and So and Mrs. Blank are getting altogether too familiar and that "I have heard that an elopement is on foot." Another self-placed feather in the cap of the "Kaffe Klaatich."

A man meets a friend and in the pleasure of the meeting they step into a refreshment parlor and indulge in a social glass or two. When they emerge they may be talking rather louder than usual. This is meat for the monger. Immediately the report is circulated that Mr. D. Jones is rapidly developing into a confirmed sot, that he neglects his family, abuses them in every way and that it is only a question of a very short time before a drunkard's grave will envelope them. Score another one for the "Kaffe Klaatichs."

A man leaves one business to engage in another. The affair is talked over in the presence of children and when these children are at play with others, what they heard at home occurs to them and in the innocence of their infantile minds they remark that Mr. Smythe has been compelled to go out of business. The "Kaffe Klaatich" has made another strike and the offsprings are following the lines laid down for them.

And so it goes. Such people forget they lay themselves open to censure. In their own estimation they are immaculate and those talked about are marked with the brand of Cain. If they would only sweep their own doorways before casting reflections upon those of their neighbors, they would contribute to the harmony and general satisfaction of all with whom they come in contact.—Ex.

—During the winter of 1901, Mr. R. O. Beil, Pontiac, Ill., contracted a severe cold which left him with a very annoying cough. In speaking of how he cured it he says "I had been suffering from the effects of la grippe followed by a severe cough for several weeks last winter, and tried nearly every remedy known to myself or friends, but found no relief up to the time I began using Hart's Honey and Horehound. I received benefit even from the first bottle of this medicine, and three 25c bottles effectually cured me. There are no deleterious effects following its use and I consider Hart's Honey and Horehound the best throat and lung remedy in the world." Sold by Sam Church.

Will Voters Believe Them.

That which bothers the Tribune now is the position of the stalwart press in Wisconsin. They are all falling gracefully into the support of Gov. La Follette with expressions like this: "We did not think Mr. La Follette's nomination for the best interests of the people, however," and "this paper, while opposing the nomination of the governor, submits to the will of the majority." This course on their part is approved by the administration papers, but what is the campaign thunder these sheets will use in supporting a man whom in every issue they have abused, and whose past administration by them is said to be democratic and populist. He has been compared with Bryan and Mrs. Lease of Kansas. Every principle of his platform has been belittled, and not one thing for which he stood endorsed. Will the stalwart press, then, give him that "unqualified endorsement," or will they put a string to it? In either course followed will the voters believe them?

Judge Edward F. Dunne, of the criminal court of Chicago, has recently rendered a decision that is of interest to every business man in the country. It was the case of the state versus William G. West, an employee of one of the great packing houses, who was charged by that company with embezzlement. West, a young married man about 30 years of age, who was living with and supporting a wife and two children, had charge of a meat car for the firm, and each week loaded the car in Chicago and then took it to Aurora, making six or eight stops at small towns along the way to make deliveries to small dealers. West collected the money for all his deliveries and twice a week made a written report and turned in his money, amounting sometimes to as high as $3,000. For doing all this work, and occupying a position of trust in which thousands of dollars passed through his hands he was paid $15 a week. The company that employed him pushed the prosecution and wanted him sent to the penitentiary, but Judge Dunne found him guilty of embezzling but $15, thus saving him from the penitentiary, and sentenced him to serve thirty days in jail. In rendering his decision Judge Dunne told the employers of West that when they asked a man to take such a responsible position at such a small salary and where he is called on in the performance of his duty to collect such large amounts of money, knowing that he has a wife and two children to care for, "you are simply inviting him to commit a crime, or at least exposing him to temptation, and it is wrong." The judge said he believed West, the prisoner, to be a good man, and that had his salary been even as much as $5 more per week he would never have been exposed to temptation. "If he had been paid $25 a week as he should have been paid, he would have had $500 in the bank instead of being here convicted of embezzlement." The decision of Judge Dunne is well worth serious consideration by all who give employment to others.

A GOOD THING
For Human Flesh and Horse Flesh, the Household and Stable Requisite.

Greene's Infallible Liniment is endorsed by heads of families, athletes, horsemen, everybody who has used it as the best remedy for the household, the stable, the gymnasium and the travelling quarters.
No other remedy can take its place and do its work so satisfactorily. (On man or horse) It quickly relieves the bruises of the pugilist and football player; the strains, sprains, chafes, swellings, lameness or muscle soreness of the bicyclist and the race horse; the hurts of childhood and the accidents and ails of everyday life.
"The rub-out is great stuff. I like it better than anything I ever used." Bob Fitzsimmons.
"I have used Greene's Liniment on my horses, shall never be without it." Wm. A. Pinkerton.
"The best preparation for training purposes.
Keeps the muscles from hardening and relieves all soreness and stiffness." Jos. R. Chappell.
"I find it valuable for bruises, sprains and sore muscles. It is an excellent conditioner." Jas.
J. Corbett.
"Directly, 2:03:14, would never have been able to start in '99 if I hadn't used Greene's Liniment.
It kept his legs sound and clean all season. I also used it on Tommy Britton, 2:08; Giles Noyes,
2:08; Sherman Clay, 2:08; Lord Roseberry,
2:10; Hartford, Jr., 2:11; I am certain that much of the success of these horses was due to Greene's Liniment." Geo. West, (Trainer).
"I have used Greene's Liniment for horses and for my own aches and pains. It is a standard remedy in my family." H. J. Kline.
"As a family remedy it is invaluable." J. B.
Jackson.
"In my family it has been used with perfectly satisfactory results." G. F. Moore.
In thousands of homes throughout the land
Greene's Infallible Liniment is a "stand-by" that is confidently and satisfactorily used by old and young. There is only one thing more convincing than the testimony of others; that is actual personal experience, then of yourself you know.
This great antiseptic healing remedy that will subdue acute pain in a very few minutes and quickly overcome inflammation and swelling is sold for 25c and 50c a bottle. A large size at one dollar is put up for stable use.
All the best druggists keep Greene's Infallible
Liniment. Accept no substitute. There is no other liniment that is like it or "just as good."
The makers, J. W. Greene & Co., Chicago, will send a large free sample upon request and facts to cover cost of mailing.

use of ice can be dispensed with,

A Good Insurance.
G. M. Jones of Oshkosh has been in the city the past week writing insurance for the La Crosse Mutual Aid association. This company has some points about its way of doing business which are entirely different from those of the average accident or sick benefit company.

By the payment of one dollar a month a man is protected from loss of time from any cause whatever except he is injured while violating the law. The benefits range from $40 to $15 per month according to nature of the man's employment, whether of hazardous nature or not. There is also a benefit in case of death amounting to from $90 to $200 per month.

This is said to be the only company that pays for the first week's sickness and whose policies cover sickness from rheumatism. It also pays for a man's time if he is kept from work by quarantine by a contagious disease, even though the man may not be sick himself. Mr. Jones has already written a number of policies in this city, and expects to believe for several weeks yet.

MARRIED BUT NOT MATED

By "RITA."

CHAPTER XXII.—(Continued.)

Something in his excited voice struck Ivor. He looked at the lad's face by the light of the candle he had just lit, and saw that it was indeed brimming over with importance and excitement.

"What is it?" he asked quickly.

"Sir—Mr. Ivor," he said, very earnestly. "I didn't like to tell you when you was so ill; but a sad trouble's come to my little gentleman's mother."

"Yes, yes—I know that," said Ivor, impatiently. "She's in prison on a charge of murder."

"You know it?" said Tom, disappointedly. "And here was I keeping everything so close and dark for fear of exciting you. However," he added more hopefully, "you don't know as I've been a playin' the part of amateur detective officer—do you, sir?—and a fellerin' and a spyin' and a windin' myself into things wonderful! You don't know as I've a friend who's own man to a party as you've no special call to be friendly with? and you don't know as how I've been settin' a trap for that friend, and a fellerin' things out as he don't even know he's been a sayin' of—er, sir, do you?"

"Tom!" cried Ivor, breathlessly, "what have you been doing?"

"Mr. Ivor—sir," said Tom, warming to his work, as he saw the impression he had made. "I vowed to serve you faithfully, and I vowed to serve the beautiful lady. And I ain't never forgotten it, and don't mean to. And now my time's come, and if you've a mind to collar that ere double-dyed old sinner, as calls hisself Count Savona, why just you say the word, and I'll put you on the way to it."

"You?" cried Ivor, amazed.

"Me, sir," said Tom, proudly. "Tis a long story, but I'll make it as short as I can. I've told you this Count's man is a friend of mine, leastways, a sort of acquaintance like—and I once did him a good turn, which he ain't forgotten. However, that don't matter. When you was so ill, and I got hold of the newspapers now and then, and read about Mrs. Marsden, I was quite struck. I remembered seein' her come out of their chambers, and how we talked together, and how distressed she was to hear of your illness, and I says to myself, 'There's something mighty queer here!' and when Col. Dunbar comes to see you, sir, I speaks to him, and he told me how she was committed to prison, and they wouldn't take bail, and how terrible bad things looked against her, and what a villain this Count is; and I puts all the facts together, and I goes to my friend, and I tries to sound him, and I lets him know as I know a party as to whom money's no object, and when he's a bit muddled he lets out one thing and then another, and a pretty piece of villainy it is! But, sir, he went on, dropping his voice, and speaking more impressively, 'what would you say if I told you as how Count Savona had got the real party as did the murder hidden away secretly? What would you say if I told you as how I'd watched, and followed, and traced him to that party's presence? What would you say if I told you I'd seen him with my own eyes get the dagger from her? She's a woman, sir; and my eyes, ain't she a Tartar, too? What would you say if I told you that that dagger was in his own keepin' up to an hour ago? for his mortal atfear of bidin' it anywhere for fear anyone should find it on land, or water, either. What—'

"Oh, Tom, Tom!" It was such a cry of relief, gratitude, wonder, joy, that the lad's eyes filled with tears as he heard it, as he saw his master's face, and felt the strong, benignant pressure of the hands he loved. "Oh, Tom—you brave, clever fellow—you've done all this! Why, wouldn't thank you?"

"Don't go for to thank me, sir," said Tom, huskily. "I only did it as my duty, and waiting and watching has helped me wonderful; for you see, sir, that Count don't know me."

"When did you see him last?" asked Ivor, eagerly.

"An hour ago. You see, sir—thanks to the man—I can get admittance into his rooms, and I tracked him back from the woman. She's hidin' in a little out-of-the-way place near Bernersday, and she's mortal ill, too, and serves her right, I says. She was aoin' back to India when the Count collared her, and he's kept her here hidden, and with a spy of his own to watch her, and told her as how it would be safer if she remained quiet until the thing had blown over. And to hear her rave—my!—it's turned my blood cold many a time, for all I didn't understand half her foreign lingo. Now, sir, that's the story for you, and I'm ready to swear to it, every word, as soon as ever you like."

"No, sir, I'm sure he hasn't. And if he was goin' to leave the country, his man 'ud know."

"The man is to be depended on, you think?"

"Certain sure," affirmed Tom. "He'd sell his soul for a sovereign, he would; and his master nearly starves him, and treats him like a dog. There ain't much love lost between them. I warrant, if the man's brought over to our side, Mr. Ivor, the case goes all agin that Count."

"I see," said Ivor, thoughtfully. "Come along, then; let us go to the detective and tell him what you've learned. Only to think, Tom, that you've been the cleverest of us all, and have done this while we've been waiting and puzzling in vain!"

"Keep it quiet," said the great Broun, when he had heard all Tom had to say. "We'll catch him beautiful at the next examination. I think you've a grudge to pay off, sir, haven't you?" he added, looking at Ivor with a twinkle in his eye. "If so, your time's coming round. Perhaps this clever Count don't know there's such a thing as punishment for perjury in this country. He comes from a place where swearing ain't of much accession of her native servant, it appeared that she had found a hiding place for John Marsden, and after a time followed him there. After three years of this sort of life, however, she noticed that her companion was growing restless and discontented. Being of a somewhat jealous disposition, she did not admire these symptoms, and kept a careful watch on the man who had sworn to her an eternal fidelity in exchange for all her generosity and devotion to himself. Despite her vigilance, however, he escaped, after taking a sufficient sum of money to pay for his passage, and she, feeling sure he had come to England, dismissed her servants, broke up her home, and followed him thither.

Anyone who knows anything of the Indian character, knows that it blends the patience of the cat with the ferocity of the tiger. This woman had suffered insult at the hands of the man she had befriended and served. It was but natural that she should set herself to avenge such wrongs, and she did so without loss of time. Little by little, in secret and in silence, she tracked him to his place of abode; she learned his habits; she watched his actions. Having a perfect acquaintance with the English language, she found no difficulty in procuring the information she desired, and yet in keeping herself carefully out of sight of her intended victim. On the night of the murder she had been absent from her lodgings from 8 o'clock at night till 2 in the morning; this could be proved by the evidence of the servant at the lodgings, and the native woman who had attended her.

The evidence of Tom proved the Count's visits, the fact of her giving him the dagger, and, on that worthy being searched, the said dagger was still found in his possession. At this stage of the proceedings the magistrate ordered the immediate release of Beryl Marsden, and at the same time ordered the Count Savona to be committed to prison on the charge of being "an accessory after the fact."

The woman Matabia was then formally charged with the murder, and the case remanded for further hearing.

As Col. Dunbar advanced to Beryl's side, she staggered blindly forward; then all around grew dim and black before her, and she would have fallen to the ground but for his outstretched arms.

In an instant Ivor was beside them, and the fainting woman was conveyed out of the court, and Col. Dunbar took her at once to his hotel, where Madge was waiting in agonies of impatience and anxiety.

She almost screamed with terror when she saw the helpless form and deathlike face of her friend.

"Put her to bed at once, and I will send for a doctor," said Col. Dunbar, hastily. "Dead? No, but near death to it, I should say. She's gone through enough to kill ten women."

A FAMILY JAR.

Recollections of an Ancient Row with Modern Application.

"Eve," growled Adam, "these biscuits are fierce!"

"Don't you like them, dear?"

"Like em! Huh! Not half like moth—ahem! They're very bum, very bum! I wish you'd buy a cook book!"

"They say a man's soul is in his stomach, and I believe it!"

"Eve," and Adam glared, "you're the most exasperating woman I ever saw! By jing, I wish I had my rib back!"

"There you go—throwing that in my face again! Who asked you for your old rib, anyway? Weren't you just as lonesome as you could be until I came?"

"And I wish I'd been satisfied to let it go at that! Another case of 'When lonesomeness is bliss 'tis folly to get married!'"

"Boo-hoo!"

"Here, now—"

"Boo-hoo-oo!"

"Aw say! Darn it, Eve—"

"Boo-hoo! I wish I was de-ecad!"

"Gosh-blame it all, Eve, I was just jokin'! Don't do that! Honest—the biscuits are the best ever—and I'd eat 'em if they were like cobblestones! I'm a chump and a fool and—"

And a benevolent old boomptagosaurus, declares the San Francisco Bulletin, looking on with a fatherly smile while the reconciliation took place.

"Egobulus!" he ejaculated, "the woman wins with the tears of defeat!"

And she continues to do so even to this day.

Beggar Sells His Route.

"Some day," said an Amsterdam avenue merchant, as he tossed a cent to a beggar in his store, "we shall have a rating for the standing of those beggars who come around with the regularity of a church plate."

"You saw me give that chap a cent. He never misses calling, and his time doesn't vary five minutes. He has been on this round for two years."

"There was another fellow before him who used to call every morning. One day I missed him. This man came in his place. I never speak harshly to the beggars, but when a new one shows up I am a bit curious."

"I told the new man that I could do nothing for him, as my list was full. He said he had bought out the other man's walk—he meant route—and that the contribution was due him, the newcomer."

"I treated the statement in a purely commercial way. I simply said he must furnish evidence of his purchase before asking the contribution."

"The next day brought the retired beggar to my desk. He said it was true he had sold out. I asked him what he was doing. With a look of pride he replied:

"'Anna da biz now. Blasta da rock, hma da tum.'"

"I am sometimes asked why I do not decline to help these beggars, and am told that if they were not helped they would have to go to work. There will always be another beggar to take the place of the one who gets a job."

Mozart's mother was a delicate, spirituelle creature, who, it was said, seemed more soul than body.

AGRICULTURAL

Sowing Crimson Clover.

The seeds of crimson clover, when sown in corn, are put in at the last cultivation of the corn, in July or August, according to locality and the growth of the corn. It is the general practice to simply scratch the seed in and while this is often sufficient it results in loss in seasons when drought prevails or even when the season is only a little more than ordinarily dry. Twelve to fifteen pounds of seed should be used per acre, and it should be put in just before the last cultivation of the corn so that the latter process will cover it well. Of course it will not stand the winter in all sections, but if handled in the manner suggested it will do well in most sections where the red clover succeeds. The feeding value of clover hay is high, as is its fertilizing value, to say nothing of the value of having a clover crop on the soil during the winter, so that every farmer should make great efforts to have a stand of crimson clover even though they fail for several times in succession.

Enlarging the Wheelbarrow.

When wheeling corn fodder and other light stuff, a wheelbarrow's capacity is too limited for convenience. The illustration shows a simple attachment that can be slipped into the barrow on some occasions, to the great increase of its capacity. The side pieces should be hardwood strips. The attachment may be supported by books from the strips to the top of the wheelbarrow's back if preferred.

Fertilizing the Strawberry.

From a careful study of the anatomy of the strawberry plant the Wisconsin station is of the opinion that a liberal top dressing with the manure or a very fertile soil after the fruiting season is the most rational method of fertilizing the strawberry plantation. This dressing protects the crowns of the plants from excessive summer heat and furnishes the young roots with abundant nourishment throughout the growing season, developing strong plants which are able to store up in the short stems a good supply of reserve material for the first leaf growth the following spring.

Quality of Eggs.

We often hear people say that eggs from some breeds of fowls are richer than those from others, and that those with dark shells are richer than those with white shells. Such differences, or rather, the source of such differences is purely imaginary. Neither the breed nor the color of the shell affect the quality of the egg. It is the food, and that alone, which affects the flavor and delicate quality of the egg. If hens are carefully fed on wholesome foods, they will remain healthy, and their eggs will be very different from those laid by poorly conditioned hens.

Hay Crop Substitute.

There is always an excellent substitute for clover and timothy when the hay crop is short, and that is millet. It is a quick-growing summer crop that may be seeded in May or June, and it seldom fails to produce a large yield of hay. It is also one of the best eroditors of weeds that can be used, and it grows so rapidly as to crowd the weeds to destruction. A crop of Hungarian grass may also be seeded down for a summer yield of hay, as it may picture can but convince one of his wonderful development of bone and muscle. His sire is the great Cresceus, with a trotting record of 2:02 1/4, who is rich in the best blood of American trotters. He holds six world's wagon and harness records on mile and half-mile tracks, and it is predicted by those who are judges that he will yet go a mile in two minutes flat. Mr. Kelcham, of Toledo, the owner of Cresceus, trains and drives his own horse. The dam of Gerald McKinnie (Mary Centlivre, 2:12) was a wonderful mare, possessing speed equal to the sire, and some are of the opinion more. She had to her credit a half mile paced in 50 1/2 seconds. Her family relations are high class and among the fastest. She was purchased by Mr. McKinnie of the Centlivre Brothers. The Gerald colt at the time the picture was taken was four months old. He is a beautiful black, with not a white hair on him, and shows a wonderful gait for his age.

To Mend a Broken Leg.

A broken leg of a fine young purebred pullet was mended by winding carefully with surgeon's plaster, which can be bought for a few cents per roll at the drug store. It is not the same as court plaster. Wind closely, the courses overlapping, but not so tightly as to stop circulation. The bird was turned loose at once and received no further care, but the leg seems as good as ever after four or five weeks.—D. H. B. in Farm and Home.

Fruits on Rented Farms.

The Metropolitan and Rural Home gives the following sensible advice. Fruits should be planted and kept up on rented farms. There is no reason why a landlord should not take interest and see that the tenants are supplied with small fruits, grapes, etc. The leases should be for a long time and plants and vines should be furnished, the renter to plant and take care of them. Strawberries fruit the year after planting, raspberries the second year, blackberries and grapes the third year and free fruits from the third to the seventh year. There is no reason why both landlord and tenant should not take an interest in these things.

Lima Beans.

Lima beans demand considerable potash and lime. Wood ashes are consequently beneficial to them, but if ashes are unobtainable the potash salts will be found excellent. A light application of nitrate of soda will give the young plants a good start.

PLANTS SHUT DOWN.

Two Dams at Irwin, Pa., are Swept Away and Western Part of the Town is Flooded.

Irwin, Pa., July 25.—Not a manufacturing establishment in town is running today as a result of last night's storm. The breaking of the two dams flooded the entire western part of Irwin and at Coal Hollow houses, bridges and railroad sidings were washed away. The big Westmoreland car shops were damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars. In the country many coal shafts are flooded and dozens of bridges have been destroyed.

Acres of Crops Destroyed.

Geneva, N. Y., July 25.—A cloudburst caused heavy damage near Dresden last night. Acres of crops were destroyed, a number of dwellings, barns and other buildings were washed away and several miles of track of the Pennsylvania division of the New York Central were washed out. One house was carried into Seneca lake. The occupants escaped from the second story windows.

Firemen Kept Busy.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 25.—A violent electrical storm broke over this city and surrounding country today, causing considerable damage to property and vegetation. The fire department was kept busy for the space of an hour extinguishing fires caused by lightning. The Flint glass works of James J. Murray & Co. was struck by lightning and partially destroyed. The loss is estimated at more than $30,000.

Lightning also struck one of the small oil tanks at the Point Breeze Oil Works. The flames were confined to the one tank.

Tracks Under Water.

Hornellsville, N. Y., July 25.—A hail and rainstorm visited Canaseraga, thirteen miles west of here, last night, doing thousands of dollars damage, especially to growing crops. For a time the water was three feet deep on the Erie railroad tracks.

Water ran down the streets of the village in rivers, cutting great holes in the streets. All the cellars of the town were flooded and merchants could not recover their goods in time to save them.

TO PROTECT COREA.

Independence of the Islands is Guaranteed by Japan and Great Britain.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—A special dispatch received here from Seoul, Corea, announced the conclusion of an important agreement between the British and Japanese ministers to Corea on one hand and the Japanese councillor Kato, special adviser of the Korean Emperor, on the other, by which Great Britain and Japan mutually guarantee Corea's independence and pledge her their support and assistance in all important questions affecting her internal and foreign policy. Corea, in return, agrees to raise her naval and military establishments to a footing sufficient for her own defense and also in case of raising a foreign loan she agrees to restrict herself to the markets of Great Britain, Japan and the United States.

She further agrees that no foreigners shall be appointed to positions in the Korean state service; that measures shall be immediately taken for the protection of Corea territory and that a protest shall immediately be made against any state or persons attempting to erect works or buildings situated so as to prejudice Corea's scheme for national defense.

Treaty with United States.

Washington, D. C., July 25.—In connection with the report of the new agreement it is pointed out here that the United States already has a treaty of peace, amity, commerce and navigation with Corea, signed in 1882, and providing that "if other powers deal unjustly or oppressively with either government, on being informed of the case, to bring about an amicable arrangement."

The new agreement is regarded in some quarters here as an aftermath to the offensive and defensive alliance entered into between Great Britain and Japan for their interests in the East and as a further safeguard against territorial aggrandizement by any of the great powers in the Orient.

BEER BOTTLERS' STRIKE.

Demand Union Wages, Abolition of Child Labor and Recognition of the Union.

Chicago, Ill., July 25.—The strike of the beer bottlers in three breweries may assume serious proportions. The men on strike are members of a local union chartered by the American Federation of Labor and claim jurisdiction over the bottlers of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors, carbonated waters and soft drinks. The National Brewery Workers' Union claims jurisdiction over the beer bottlers, and has had a charter here for them for over a year. The three breweries where the strike was called will not treat with the local union, claiming that heretofore all the Chicago breweries have treated with all the unions of their employees through the Chicago-Milwaukee Brewers' Association, and as such have made their agreements, which they will carry out. Secretary Hueston of the Brewery Workers' Union said last night that only their union would be recognized and endorsed by the Chicago Federation of Labor, while Alex. Ober, business agent of the local union of bottlers, claims that the members of his union will remain on strike until their union is recognized, union wages paid and child labor abolished in the bottling departments of the Chicago breweries.

FALL OF VALENCIA.

President of Venezuela, with Troops, Embarks for Lagunara—Navy Department Notified.

Washington, D. C., July 25.—The following cablegram has been received at the navy department from Commander Melan, of the Cincinnati, dated Lagunara, July 24:

"The President of Venezuela, with troops, embarked for Lagunara at 2 p. m. today. They leave only 300 soldiers at Barcelona. Rumored Valencia has been taken."

FLAMES FANNED BY WIND

Big Lumber Mill on Fire and Surrounding Buildings are in Danger of Being Destroyed.

Seattle, Wash., July 25.—The mill of the Bryant Lumber Company at Fremont, a suburb of Seattle, is on fire and will be a total loss. It is one of the largest mills on the sound. A strong wind is fanning the flames and surrounding buildings are in great danger.

The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

Fast Train Sells Machinery Abroad.
A New York railroad man says that foreigners come to this country for the purpose of rilling on the Empire State Express, and, after a round trip to Buffalo, go back home convinced that America is ahead of every other country in the world in regard to transportation. The achievement of this train, says the general passenger agent, has been one great element in introducing American machinery abroad. Its reputation is world-wide. Through it the Russian government was induced to construct the Trans-Siberian railway of Pennsylvania rails, laid on Oregon ties and equipped with more than 1,000 American locomotives. —New York Press.

Garbage Converted into Briquettes.
A process has been discovered in France by which garbage is converted into briquettes. It consists of mining the refuse from abattoirs, fish markets, etc., straw paper and the like, and adding tar and naphthalene. The whole mass is then mixed in a kneading apparatus, dried and pressed into briquettes. These briquettes have a slight odor of gas, burn brightly and engender heat slowly.

Largest Vine in the World.
North Carolina claims the largest grapevine in the world. It is on the farm of B. F. Meekins, Roanoke Island, not far from the site of Fort Raleigh, and near the birthplace of Virginia Dare. It is claimed that the vine was planted by Sir Walter Raleigh's ill-fated colony in 1587. It is of the Scuppernon variety, covers an acre of ground, and yields about a ton of grapes annually.

One Year's Homicides in America.
It is stated that 39,572 persons perished at the hands of homicides in the United States during the five years ending with 1900. The figures of punishment for the crime are not made up, but are known to be startlingly small.

STATE OWNERSHIP.
Next Generation Will Hear Much Discussion on the Subject.
The ownership of the telegraph and the railways by the government is likely to be much discussed in the United States within the next generation, says Charles A. Conant in the Atlantic. There are many objections to such control, but the proposition is capable of candid discussion and does not in itself go beyond the confines of a legitimate political issue. Railway corporations held their privileges under the right of limited ability. This makes each of them an artificial creature of the law. They have obtained in favor of the state another important privilege, in the right to take land for their tracks by right of eminent domain. That the state has the right to revise these grants of special privileges so as to establish a closer supervision over the use and abuse is unquestionable, except perhaps in exceptional instances. If the proposal that the government shall acquire the railways is socialistic or revolutionary it is a form of revolution already achieved in the most conservative countries of Europe—Germany, France, Belgium, Switzerland and Russia. Switzerland has only recently completed arrangements for the acquisition of the chief private lines and their conversion into state railways. The telegraph lines are now controlled by the government in nearly every European country, including Great Britain, and the functions of the post-office are steadily encroaching upon the business of the express companies.

The Growth of Kansas.
The population of Kansas has not increased much during the last ten years. Quite an emigration out of the state during the period of depression and the large number of emigrants to Oklahoma nearly overbalance the natural increase. In 1890 the total population was 1,427,096; in 1890, 1,444,708.

In the cotton crop of 1899-1900, North Carolina produced 561,000 bales, of which no less than 435,000 were consumed within the borders of the state. South Carolina stood next in the line of progress, with a production of 921,000 and a consumption of 491,000 bales.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

MONROE HUNTINGTON INJURED.

Was Stepped on by a Horse and Lingered Near Death for Several Days.

Monroe Huntington, the eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Huntington, came about as near death on Thursday of last week as is usual in such cases and then got out of it alive. As it is he has a broken arm, a piece of his skull gone and a countless number of bruises by which to remember his experience.

He got his injuries by getting under the feet of his father's horse in the stable and as he was all alone with the animal nobody knows just how the affair occurred.

Mrs. Huntington and the boy had been in the garden in the afternoon and about four o'clock the lady went into the house to prepare supper and the boy went to the stable. Soon after Mrs. Huntington heard cries from the stable and hastening in that direction she was greeted by a sight that would be calculated to make any mother's heart stand still. Monroe stood in the stable door literally covered with blood and cuts.

He was taken into the house and hastily examined and a surgeon summoned, but it was hardly expected that he would survive until a physician arrived. When the doctor examined him he found his right wrist broken, a piece of the bone chipped from his skull near the right temple. His left arm so badly bruised and swollen that it could not be told whether the bones were injured, while his face and body were so badly bruised that there was hardly a square inch on his body that was not discolored.

The doctor held but very little hope for the boy's recovery, and it was not until Sunday morning that his parents began to feel at all easy in their minds, by which time he had begun to show signs of mending.

Just how the little fellow got so badly bruised up can only be surmised from the fact that he stated at first that he had got onto the horse's back as it stood in the stall, after which it is presumed that he fell off the animal, which no doubt frightened it and caused it to prance about in the stall and step on and kick the boy repeatedly. Luckily he retained consciousness through it all and managed to get out from under the horse's feet or there is no doubt that he would have met his death right there.

Our Water Supply.

Some discussion has occurred during the past two weeks concerning the purity of the spring water which it is proposed to pump into the water mains after the system now in course of construction is completed and accepted.

Dr. Frank Pomainville sent a sample of water to Chicago to be tested and received a report to the effect that it was not fit for use as a drinking water, on account of organic matter held in suspension in the fluid.

When this report got into the hands of some of our news mongers, they immediately jumped to the conclusion that the spring water was unfit for use and by careful attention to the matter managed to stir up quite a feeling.

Now, as a matter of fact, the water examined was not the spring water that it is proposed to use in the water works. The water sent in was from what is known as the Witter fish pond, the overflow from which goes past the waterworks cistern and has been used to test the pipes of the system, the spring water not having been piped to the reservoir when the testing was commenced.

Upon being interviewed, Dr. Pomainville stated that one could see by the appearance of this water that it was not fit for use, but that he had it tested merely out of curiosity. Since that time he has sent in a sample of the spring water, from which he has not heard at this writing, but he says that he has no doubt that it will prove all right.

The water that will be used in the waterworks will be drawn from the lower side of the road and will flow through closed drains to the reservoir so that there will be no possibility of it becoming contaminated from external causes, and will not be the overflow from the fish pond, as some seem to imagine.

On Monday next this story, which is Maurice Thompson's best literary effort will begin in The Milwaukee Journal. It is admittedly the author's most successful novel, and is being talked about everywhere. The great historical novel will be printed daily in The Journal until completed. To Farmers and Others.

The following circular has been addressed to farmers and others throughout the county who can assist in making our exhibit at the state fair a success this fall:

Take Notice.

This circular is addressed to those parties who can by their assistance and co-operation, do a share toward making our exhibit at the state fair this fall a success.

At the last meeting of the county board an appropriation was made by that body for the purpose of insuring that Wood county be represented at state fair. The appropriation was not large, but it was enough so that by every man interested taking little trouble we will be able to make an exhibit that will be equal to anything to be seen there.

Wood county soil is among the most productive in the state and our products are not only greatly diversified but also of unusual quality as a general thing. These are some of the factors that should contribute toward making our exhibit a good one. If you have anything on your place that you think worthy to exhibit, notify your chairman of the fact and have the product, whatever it is, sent in. This applies to all kinds of farm produce, either fruit, vegetables or grain, and do not only take an interest in the matter yourself, but try to interest your neighbor also.

The advantage to the county in having a good exhibit at the state fair can be readily seen. People will be there from all over the state, and these products will be examined by parties who take an interest in such matters. If a man be looking for a good place to locate in the farming business he will certainly see that Wood county is a good place. The more farmers who locate in the county, the more valuable each piece of land becomes, no matter if it is already in a high state of cultivation. Those who have land to sell will also be benefited, for there is no better way of advertising the advantage of a county.

For further information in the matter consult your town chairman, John Juno of Marshfield, or L. M. Nash of Grand Rapids and everything possible will be done to assist you.

Very respectfully, L. M. NASH.

School Census.

The census of school children for the city of Grand Rapids has been completed by Oswald Menzel and his assistant, Clark Jenkins, and the following is the summary of what they found:

First ward, 201; second ward, 261; third ward, 126; fourth ward, 232; fifth ward, 241; sixth ward, 201; seventh ward, 184; eighth ward, 173; total, 1,619. This is an increase of 142 over last year, the whole number then being 1,477. Out of this number last year about 1,011 attended schools in the city, 155 being in the Catholic schools, 37 in the German Lutheran and the remainder at the public.

The increase in the number of school children would indicate that our city has enjoyed a very healthy growth during the past year. While it is customary to figure out the increase by this method, the figures are generally found to be misleading, so that each reader may figure it out to suit himself.

Cranberry Growers to Meet.

A circular has been issued by W. H. Fitch, secretary of the Wisconsin State Cranberry Growers' association, which gives the date for the coming convention of the Wisconsin Cranberry Growers' association as well as the program so far as laid out at the present time.

The date for the meeting is Tuesday, August 19th, and it will be held at the Gaynor-Blackstone marsh near Cranmoor, where the experimental station is located. The usual picnic dinner will be served which will be under the charge of Mrs. M. O. Potter and Mrs. Andrew Searls.

Among the topics that will be discussed will be an address, "The Cost of Production," by Charles Briere, "Planting of Vines," by ex-President A. C. Bennett, and "Canadian Fruit Law," by Judge John A. Gaylor.

The meeting this year promises to be largely attended, as the social features of the summer session bring out a lot of people who do not ordinarily attend the business sessions of the organization.

DRAIN SWAMP LAND

RECLAIM BUENA VISTA MARSH

That is the Object of Illinois Capitalists.—Other Items of News Briefly Told.

A party of Illinois capitalists who have purchased large tracts of marsh lands east of this city are making preparations to drain the land and make farms out of it. The work will involve the expenditure of thousands of dollars. In speaking of the matter the Stevens Point Journal says:

When interviewed today by a Journal reporter one of the prominent holders and managers of the lands stated that they could not definitely announce their plans as yet, but gave assurance that if carried out the enterprise now under consideration would require the expenditure of vast capital and time in perfecting it.

From other sources it is learned that the proposed plan is about as outlined below. Under present conditions the lands are nearly valueless, except for hay purposes. To give them value it will be necessary to drain from them the water which now covers that area during the greater part of the year. If so drained the soil is fertile and productive and the land can be sold at greatly advanced prices.

In order to do this completely and successfully, several large canals or drainage ditches will be constructed through these lands. The largest of these will be about 30 feet wide at the top, 20 feet at the bed and of a depth to successfully drain the land to a satisfactory depth. It will be from six to ten miles long, a matter yet to be determined, and which will be largely influenced by the construction of the first part.

The canal will be built on lines similar to several constructed by the same parties, with others, in Illinois, notably one near Kankakee, of about the same dimensions. If successful the projects will throw open to cultivation thousands of acres of good farming lands, and should mean much for the future of the town affected and of the county.

A Small Fire.—Fire was discovered in the back end of the Leader office on Thursday evening about nine o'clock, and an alarm brought out the engine and a large crowd of people. The fire caught from the exhaust pipe of the gasoline engine and had probably been smoldering for three hours when discovered by Mr. Cooley, who happened to be at work in the office. Owing to the space between the siding and plaster being filled with sawdust, very little headway was made and when a stream was procured a few boards were ripped off and the fire extinguished. Some delay was caused by the hose cart being taken back to the engine house, the parties in charge having been informed that the fire had been extinguished. No damage resulting from the mistake, however.

Injured with Dynamite.—Two little boys at Junction City, the sons of Frank Tadwaldt, were injured on Sunday by an explosion of dynamite. Their father had been blasting stumps with the stuff and left some of it lying about and the boys got hold of it and amused themselves by playing with it. By some means some of it exploded and the result was that the older boy, named Frank, lost the thumb and first finger from his left hand and was badly bruised about the hip. The younger boy was not injured so seriously but was quite badly burned. It would seem as though any person who had used either dynamite or dynamite caps would see from the destruction that it is not the proper thing for children to play with.

A Delicate Operation.—An operation was performed on Leo Choppie, the 17 year old son of John Choppie, on Tuesday for peritphilitis, and at last reports the young man getting along nicely. The operation was performed by Dr. Humphrey, assisted by Dr. E. P. Wallace of Shawano. The boy had been sick for some time and when operated on was found to be in a very serious condition. He lives near Nekeosa, but is now at the home of N. Boucher on the west side, where he will remain until he recovers sufficiently to be moved.

Blue Rock Scores.—The members of the gun club held three events at their grounds on Sunday afternoon, the following being the scores. The first event, 25 birds, C. Kellogg 13, Nash 21, Mason 20, Conway 15, Scott 20, Ridgman 20, Church 15, Drumb 20. Second event, 25 birds, Kellogg 15, Nash 21, Mason 18, Conway 15, Scott 23, Ridgman 15, Church 20, Drumb 25. Third event, 25 birds, Kellogg 15, Nash 19, Mason 21, Conway 11, Scott 19, Ridgman 15, Church 17, Drumb 20.

Making Fire Map.—A. L. Craig has been in the city the past week engaged in making a fire map of the city of Grand Rapids. Mr. Craig represents the Sanborn Fire Map Publishing Co. whose publications are generally used by insurance men. The maps are printed in different colors to show the different material used in the construction of buildings about the city. Insurance men also state that there will be correction made in the rates in this city.

A young Prisoner.—Willie Mechem who lives with his mother in the town of Hansen was before Justice Brown on Tuesday on a charge of having stolen a scythe valued at $2.50, the complaining witness being Julius Huse. Owing to the boy's extreme youth, he being but 10 years old, and other mitigating circumstances the judge discharged him with a severe reprimand.

Attended the Saengerfest.—About 115 tickets were sold out of here on Sunday to parties who went to Merrill to attend the Saengerfest. Several also went up on Saturday. They report about the usual time at such places, the weather being very pleasant and the park at Merrill being an ideal spot for such an entertainment. A large crowd was in attendance. The 1903 Saengerfest will be held at Ashland.

Receiving Pickles.—The first pickles of the season were brought in to the pickle factory on Saturday and since then some have been brought in every day. F. H. Witters of Green Bay has charge of the plant at this point this season. Although the acreage planted is not as large as last year it is expected that on account of the more favorable weather the vats will be filled before the season is over.

Found a Leak.—After much digging the workmen found a large leak in the water main on High street near Oak. The place where the water came through was about two inches wide, and allowed quite a stream of water to escape. Engineer Pfeiffer states that there are several other places about town where repairs will have to be made before the work on the system will be accepted.

Wm. Barnes Sells Out.—William Barnes, the west side confectioner, sold out his stock on Tuesday to A. C. Otto, who will take charge of the place immediately. As Mr. Otto is well known and well liked in this community there is no question but that he will make a success in his new venture. Mr. Otto will add a stock of drugs to the store in the near future.

Buffalo Bill Coming.—The world famous Buffalo Bill will visit this city with his Wild West show on August 28th should nothing intervene in the meantime to switch him off the track. It is reported that Ringling Brothers are to be here in September with their gigantic show, but nothing can be learned to verify the report.

Still at It.—Those people who gave a sigh of relief last season when the waterworks gang got off their street find that they were a trifle premature, as a gang of men are going over the pipes again and digging up each joint wherever there is thought to be a leak, putting the streets in almost as bad a condition as they were last year.

Lost Four Dollars.—Dick Harvey, who is engaged in filing at the mill of Grand Rapids Lumber company, lost what small change he had in his pockets one day last week by some person entering the room where his clothes were hanging and going through the pockets. Luckily he only had about four dollars with him.

Ice Cream Social.—The Willing Heart society of the Scandinavian Moravian church will give a fair and social on Thursday evening in the Corriveau & Garrison store building. Ice cream and cake or coffee and cake, price 10c. All are cordially invited. Come and see.

Caught a Thief.—The sheriff from Outagamie county was here on Tuesday to take in charge Hugh O'Neil who was captured at Port Edwards and was charged with stealing seventy-five dollars from a saloon keeper. He departed for Appleton with his charge the same morning.

Bauer-White.

On Monday July 25th, at Milwaukee occurred the marriage of Miss Margaret Nann White of Pittsville, to William F. Bauer of Stevens Point.

Miss White is well and favorably known in this city and has a host of friends here who will unite with us in wishing her happiness.

Indigestion arises from a weakened condition of the stomach, caused by over-eating indigestible or improperly cooked food, alcoholic drinks, etc., thus exhausting nerve force and the stomach resulting in indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness and constipation. A cure of these complaints can be effected in a short time by the regular use of Re-Go, the famous Tonic Laxative Syrup. The expense is only 25 or 50 cents and is certainly a most efficient doctor bill. Re-Go is sold by Sam Church.

Save the Timber.

The Antigo News Item protests against the methods of some of the settlers who go to the north country to make farms. They select some hardwood lands, thinking the timber will pay for the land. They have an easy time cutting the timber, selling the logs and leaving the tops on the ground. They clear a little spot and chop over the farm. Then comes the time when they have no more timber to sell, no matter how high the price. Nor have they any land cleared for agriculture. This practice is condemned. They should cut every foot as fast as cut over. The other way, they get very little cash for the first cutting, but the second clearing they have to do without getting pay for it, while they have no farming land to fall back on. This is eminently good advice.

There are some queer experiences awaiting the settlers in that northern country. In Eagle River, the electric light plant buys stumps of the farmers thereabouts, paying good prices, and feeds them to its furnaces by means of carriers. They use no other wood and the farmers may be seen hauling their stumps to market at a profit, besides being rid of them.

In many sections, the call for crushed stone for roadmaking and concrete is so large that farmers sell their boulders to the crushers. These pests of the farmers even in the grayly sections, may yet become a source of profit to the land owner as well as a blessing to the roads of the country.

There are large areas all over the country in the older as well as the newer sections, which will never be profitable for anything but timber. The thrifty farmer should see that these patches of otherwise useless ground are planted with suitable trees. The dry scrubby land cannot be plowed will raise larch trees, which, in ten or fifteen years, will make the finest kind of fence posts. Willows may be made profitable in another piece, and so on to the end. All that is wanted is intelligence in selecting the trees to plant and a disposition to make the best use of all the land to be had. The people of the north are in a position to understand this and avail themselves of the knowledge. The newspapers which talk this up are doing their communities excellent service. Save the timber standing; use sparingly and plant suitable trees wherever there is place. There is growing wealth in this rule.—Milwaukee Journal.

"Kaffe Klaatseh."

In this city there exists, as in all other towns, a class of people who seem to have no other missive in life than to talk about their neighbors. There is no point too trivial for them to take up and enlarge upon. These people are the ones seldom found at home when called upon, instead they are out on a gossiping expedition, to tell what they do know, what they surmise and to obtain new data for further scandal. Such people are termed "Kaffe Klaatseh."

A young lady is walking on the street and is joined by a young man. In their joviality they laugh and joke with each other. The "Kaffe Klaatseh" makes a note of the affair and in the next meeting of her clan all kinds of scandal is indulged in.

A married man is seen talking to a woman. This in itself is entirely innocent, but in the eyes of the "Kaffe Klaatseh" is a most heinous offense and no time is lost in spreading the report that Mr. So and So and Mrs. Blank are getting altogether too familiar and that "I have heard that an elopement is on foot." Another self-placed feather in the cap of the "Kaffe Klaatseh."

A man meets a friend and in the pleasure of the meeting they step into a refreshment parlor and indulge in a social glass or two. When they emerge they may be talking rather louder than usual. This is meat for the monger. Immediately the report is circulated that Mr. D. Jones is rapidly developing into a confirmed sot, that he neglects his family, abuses them in every way and that it is only a question of a very short time before a drunkard's grave will envelope them. Score another one for the "Kaffe Klaatseh."

A man leaves one business to engage in another. The affair is talked over in the presence of children and when these children are at play with others, what they heard at home occurs to them and in the innocence of their infantile minds they remark that Mr. Smythe has been compelled to go out of business. The "Kaffe Klaatseh" has made another strike and the offspring are following the lines laid down for them.

And so it goes. Such people forget they lay themselves open to censure. In their own estimation they are immaculate and those talked about are marked with the brand of Cain. If they would only sweep their own doorways before casting reflections upon those of their neighbors, they would contribute to the harmony and general satisfaction of all with whom they come in contact.—Ex.

—During the winter of 1901, Mr. R. O. Bell, Pontiac, Ill., contracted a severe cold which left him with a very annoying cough. In speaking of how he cured it he says "I had been suffering from the effects of a gripple followed by a severe cough for several weeks last winter, and tried nearly every remedy known to myself or friends, but found no relief up to the time I began using Hart's Honey and Horehound. I received benefit even from the first bottle of this medicine, and three 25c bottles effectually cured me. There are no deleterious effects following its use and I consider Hart's Honey and Horehound the best, throat and lung remedy in the world." Sold by Sam Church.

Will Voters Believe Them.

That which bothers the Tribune now is the position of the stalwart press in Wisconsin. They are all falling gracefully into the support of Gov. La Follette with expressions like this: "We did not think Mr. La Follette's nomination for the best interests of the people, however," and "this paper, while opposing the nomination of the governor, submits to the will of the majority." This course on their part is approved by the administration papers, but what is the campaign thunder these sheets will use in supporting a man whom in every issue they have abused, and whose past administration by them is said to be democratic and populist. He has been compared with Bryan and Mrs. Lease of Kansas. Every principle of his platform has been belittled, and not one thing for which he stood endorsed. Will the stalwart press, then, give him that "unqualified endorsement," or will they put a string to it? In either course followed will the voters believe them?

Judge Edward F. Dunne, of the criminal court of Chicago, has recently rendered a decision that is of interest to every business man in the country. It was the case of the state versus William G. West, an employee of one of the great packing houses, who was charged by that company with embezzlement. West, a young married man about 30 years of age, who was living with and supporting a wife and two children, had charge of a meat car for the firm, and each week loaded the car in Chicago and then took it to Aurora, making six or eight stops at small towns along the way to make deliveries to small dealers. West collected the money for all his deliveries and twice a week made a written report and turned in his money, amounting sometimes to as high as $3,000. For doing all this work, and occupying a position of trust in which thousands of dollars passed through his hands he was paid $15 a week. The company that employed him pushed the prosecution and wanted him sent to the penitentiary, but Judge Dunne found him guilty of embezzling but $15, thus saving him from the penitentiary, and sentenced him to serve thirty days in jail. In rendering his decision Judge Dunne told the employers of West that when they asked a man to take such a responsible position at such a small salary and where he is called on in the performance of his duty to collect such large amounts of money, knowing that he has a wife and two children to care for, "you are simply inviting him to commit a crime, or at least exposing him to temptation, and it is wrong." The judge said he believed West, the prisoner, to be a good man, and that had his salary been even as much as $5 more per week he would never have been exposed to temptation. "If he had been paid $25 a week as he should have been paid, he would have had $500 in the bank instead of being here convicted of embezzlement." The decision of Judge Dunne is well worth serious consideration by all who give employment to others.

A GOOD THING
For Human Flesh and Horse Flesh, the Household and Stable Requisite.

Greene's Infallible Liniment is endorsed by heads of families, athletes, horsemen, everybody who has used it, as the best remedy for the household, the stable, the gymnasium and the training quarters.
No other remedy can take its place and do its work so satisfactorily. On man or horse in training it is used as a "rub-out." It quickly cures the bruises of the pugilist and football player; the strains, sprains, chafes, swellings, lameness or muscle soreness of the bicyclist and
the race horse; the hurts of childhood and the accidents and ails of everyday life.
"The rub-out is great stuff. I like it better than anything I ever used." Bob Fitzsimmons.
"I have used Greene's Liniment on my horses,
shall never be without it." Wm. A. Pinkerton.
"The best preparation for training purposes.
Keeps the muscles from hardening and relieves all soreness and stiffness." Jos. B. Chynski.
"I find it valuable for bruises, sprains and sore
muscles. It is an excellent conditioner." Jas.
J. Corbett.
"Directly, 2-03%, would never have been able to start in '99 if I hadn't used Greene's Liniment.
It kept his legs sound and clean all season. I also used it on Tommy Britton, 2-08; Giles Noyes,
2-05%; Sherman Clay, 2-05%; Lord Roseberry,
2-10%; Hartford, Jr., 2-11%; I am certain that much of the success of these horses was due to Greene's Liniment." Geo. West, (Trainer).
"I have used Greene's Liniment for horses and for my own aches and pains. It is a standard remedy in my family." H. J. Kline.
"As a family remedy it is invaluable." J. B.
Jackson.
"In my family it has been used with perfectly satisfactory results." G. F. Moore.
In thousands of homes throughout the land
Greene's Infallible Liniment is a "stand-by" that is confidently and satisfactorily used by old and young. There is only one thing more convincing than the testimony of others; that is actual personal experience, then of yourself you know.
This great antiseptic healing remedy that will subdue acute pain in a very few minutes and quickly overcome inflammation and swelling is sold for 25 and 50 cents a bottle. A large size at one dollar is put up for stable use.
All the best druggists keep Greene's Infallible
Liniment. Accept no substitute. There is no other liniment that is like it or "just as good."

IMPEACH A JUDGE.

Formal Protest to be Made Against Abuse of Power in Issuing Writ of Injunction.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 26.—Miners' officials are preparing a transcript with a view of bringing impeachment proceedings against Federal Judge Jackson at Parkersburg, W. Va.

This action by the miners is due to the course of Judge Jackson in restraining them from holding meetings to induce a number of the organizers for violating the injunction. The plan of action is not definitely outlined, but it is possible that the impeachment proceedings will be begun soon. If Judge Jackson after a final hearing refuses to dissolve the injunction.

Secretary Wilson admitted today that the miners contemplated this course and that they considered it a last resort. Including the complaints and Judge Jackson's decision, will be prepared for submission to President Roosevelt and the Senate. The miners also intend to give to the public the evidence in the case for the purpose of showing the grounds of the injunction was issued.

Wilson says that if the impeachment proceedings are begun there will be no interference with the miners. The miners will not ask President Roosevelt to interfere with the injunction as, he says, they realize that the President is without power as to injunctions, but if the miners corpus proceedings fail to dissolve the injunction, the President will be asked to pardon them. The habeas corpus proceedings will be begun as soon as the papers can be made out.

Must Look to Courts.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 26.—It has been stated that President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers would present to Mr. Roosevelt a protest against the decision of Judge Jackson in the West Virginia injunction case, but no such papers have reached Sam Houston Hill. It is a matter in which the President can participate at this time. It is believed the miners will look to the courts for such vindication of their rights as they may think themselves entitled to.

Levy Per Capita Assessment.

New York, July 26.—A committee appointed by the Central Federated Union to devise ways and means of aiding the striking anthracite miners has decided to levy a per capita assessment of 5 cents per member per week, to continue while the strike lasts.

Striking Firemen See Mitchell.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 26.—President Mitchell was kept busy receiving committees at strike headquarters today. A committee from the striking firemen spent some hours with him. It seems the Indianapolis convention is not in provision for the firemen, but it is understood they will receive the same relief as the miners.

Plans mapped out by some of the local assemblies of the United Mine Workers called for the protests. A committee from Nanticoke explained to Mr. Mitchell that the strikers had long considered the decision of the first consideration of the relief given them should be greater than that given to men with small families.

Gehr Pleads Guilty.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 26.—John L. Gehr of Colorado, an organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, pleaded guilty to contempt of court after his case had been on hearing all day and many witnesses had testified regarding his speeches. He admitted using various expressions and the issuance of the injunction by Federal Judge Jackson. Sentence was deferred.

For Violating Injunction.

Charleston, W. Va., July 26.—The trial of President Richards and twenty other strikers for violating an injunction issued by the United States courts at the instance of the Collins Colliery Company is in progress now before Judge Heller here.

FRISCO MAYOR IS HOT.

Believes Last Night's Pugilistic Contest a Fake—Will Prohibit Similar Exhibitions.

San Francisco, Cal., July 26.—When seen at his office today, Mayor Schmitz was very emphatic in his assertion that should he be convinced after a thorough investigation that last night's contest between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries was a prearranged affair, he would do all in his power to prohibit future pugilistic exhibitions. Mayor Schmitz has been very much disgusted with many of the recent fights that have taken place in this city. It is expected that the fighting game in this city will be forever killed should conclusive evidence be adduced to prove the assertion.

Major Schmitz has given out the following statement for publication:

From the information I have received I am forced to believe that this exhibition is no better than the previous ones we have had, namely, the Jeffries-Rubins and Gane-McFadden and others, and will do much to discredit the information given in this city. In fact, unless conclusive evidence is produced to disprove the information given, I shall have to prohibit all such professional "fight" exhibitions.

JEFFRIES STILL CHAMPION.

Boilermaker Defeats Fitzsimmons in the Eighth Round.

WAS TERRIFIC BATTLE.

Cornishman Had All the Better of the Fight Until the Knockout Came.

San Francisco, Cal., July 26.—Robert Fitzsimmons, the Australian pugilist, is still the grand old man of the ring. He met defeat at the hands of the champion, James J. Jeffries, in the arena of the California club last evening after a terrific battle of eight rounds, but he lost none of his laurels even in defeat. He is today the most wonderful fighter living at his weight.

There were a couple of men foolish enough to call this fight a fake after Fitz had been knocked out, but they were driven to the wall in the excitement. The men who imagined they had been fooled got the idea in the eighth round when the knockout came, as Fitz had dropped his hands and started to speak to Jeffries instead of talking back to him. The finishing touches, it develops that Fitz received the real knockout blow in the stomach and he knew he was gone. He dropped his hands and wanted to tell Jeffries that he was beaten, but he was too exhausted to do so. He followed the stomach punch with a blow to the jaw. However, it was the stomach blow that won the battle, as Bob afterward stated.

The endurance and hitting power of the former champion was indeed wonderful and people marveled at his form. Weighing at least 50 pounds less than the champion he carried the fight most of the time to Jeffries. The latter was a badly battered man, while "Fitz" came out without a scratch.

It seemed, indeed, that Jeffries could scarcely weather out the fight. In the eighth round it came, and under a series of exchanges, Fitzsimmons paused with his guard down and spoke to the champion. That was the end. Fitzsimmons took his defeat with amazing good cheer. He walked to the center of the ring and addressed the multitude, saying:

"The best man has won. Had I beaten Jeffries I would have conceded him the championship and then forever retired. I retire just the same now, but without having accomplished my ambition. I am satisfied."

After the fight Champion Jeffries was jubilant over his success despite the terrible scars of battle. He said: "Well, I have won, just as I expected to. It was a fierce fight, the fiercest ever had, but I won. I got a good head, but then I rather expected that. I knew Fitzsimmons had a cutting punch and would land it at some time in the fight. But the few marks and loss of a little blood were not a matter of opportunity, which came."

MARRIED BUT NOT MATED

Something in his excited voice struck Ivor. He looked at the lad's face by the light of the candle he had just lit, and saw that it was indeed brimming over with importance and excitement.

"What is it?" he asked quickly.

"Sir—Mr. Ivor," he said, very earnestly. "I didn't like to tell you when you was so ill, but a sad trouble's come to my little gentleman's mother."

"Yes, yes—I know that," said Ivor, impatiently. "She's in prison on a charge of murder."

"You know it?" said Tom, disappointedly. "And here was I keeping everything so close and dark for fear of exciting you. However," he added more hopefully, "you don't know as I've been a playin' the part of amateur detective officer—do you, sir? and a follerin' and a spyin' and a windin' myself into things wonderful! You don't know as I've a friend who's own man to a party as you're no special call to be friendly with? and you don't know as how I've been settin' a trap for that friend, and a ferritin' things out as he don't even know he's been a sayin' of—er, sir, do you?"

"Tom!" cried Ivor, breathlessly, "what have you been doing?"

"Mr. Ivor—sir," said Tom, warming to his work, as he saw the impression he had made, "I vowed to serve you faithful, and I vowed to serve the beautiful lady. And I ain't never forgotten it, and don't mean to! And now my time's come, and if you've a mind to collar that ere double-dyed old sinner, as calls hisself Count Savona, why just you say the word, and I'll put you on the way to it."

"You?" cried Ivor, amazed.

"Me, sir?" said Tom, proudly. "'Tis a long story, but I'll make it as short as I can. I've told you this Count's man is a friend of mine—leas'tways, a sort of acquaintance like—and I once did him a good turn, which he ain't forgotten. However, that don't matter. When you was so ill, and I got hold of the newspapers, now and then, and read about Mrs. Marsden, I was quite struck. I remembered seein' her come out of them chambers, and how we talked together, and how distressed she was to hear of your illness, and I says to myself, 'There's something mighty queer here!' and when Col. Dunbar comes to see you, sir, I speaks to him, and he told me how she was committed to prison, and they wouldn't take bail, and how terrible bad things looked against her, and what a villain this Count is; and I puts all the facts together, and I goes to my friend, and I tries to sound him, and I lets him know as I know a party as to whom money's no object, and when he's a bit muddled he lets out one thing and then another, and a pretty piece of villainy it is! But, sir, he went on, dropping his voice, and speakin' more impressively, 'what would you say if I told you as how Count Savona had got the real party as did the murder hidden away secretly? What would you say if I told you as how I'd watched, and followed, and traced him to that party's presence? What would you say if I told you I'd seen him with my own eyes get the dagger from her? She's a woman, sir; and my eyes, ain't she a Tartar, too? What would you say if I told you that that dagger was in his own keepin' up to an hour ago? for he's mortal afraid of hidin' it anywhere for fear anyone should find it on land, or water, either. What—'

"Don't go for to thank me, sir," said Tom, humbly. "I only did it as my duty, and waitin' and watchin' has helped me wonderful; for you see, sir, that Count don't know me."

"When did you see him last?" asked Ivor, eagerly.

"An hour ago. You see, sir—thanks to the man—I can get admittance into his rooms, and I tracked him back from the woman. She's hidin' in a little out-of-the-way place near Beaconsfield, and she's mortal ill, too, and serves her right, I says. She was aavin' back to India when the Count collared her, and he's kept her here hidin', and with a spy of his own to watch her, and told her as how it would be safer if she remained quiet until the thing had blown over. And to hear her rave—my—'t's turned my blood cold many a time, for all I didn't understand half her foreign lingo. Now, sir, that's the story for you, and I'm ready to swear to it, every word, as soon as ever you like."

"You must come at once to the detective," said Ivor, "and tell him this. Do you think the Count has any suspicion, or that he meditates leaving the country?"

"No, sir, I'm sure he hasn't. And if he was goin' to leave the country, his man 'ud know."

"The man is to be depended on, you think?"

"Certain sure," affirmed Tom. "He'd sell his soul for a sovereign, he would, and his master nearly starves him, and treats him like a dog. There ain't much love lost between them. I warrant, if the man's bought over to our side, Mr. Ivor, the case goes all agin that Count."

"I see," said Ivor, thoughtfully. "Come along, then; let us go to the detective and tell him what you've learned. Only to think, Tom, that you've been the cleverest of us all, and have done this while we've been waitin' and puzzlin' in vain!"

"Keep it quiet," said the great Brough, when he had heard all Tom had to say. "We'll catch him beautiful at the next examination. I think you've a grudge to pay off, sir, haven't you?" he added, looking at Ivor with a twinkle in his eye. "If so, your time's coming round. Perhaps this clever Count don't know there's such a thing as punishment for perjury in this country. He comes from a place where swearin' ain't of much account. It strikes me he'll look a bit green when he has to step into Mrs. Marsden's shoes."

"And must we wait another week?" asked Ivor, impatiently. "Supposing he slips off?"

The detective smiled grimly.

"Well, sir, if it comes to supposin'—supposin' there's such a thing as an extradition treaty; and supposin' there's such a thing as a nice little outstanding criminal offense against our friend; and supposin' his name ain't Count Savona at all, but plain Paolo Fesca? There's a good deal may be got out of 'supposin' if it comes to that."

CHAPTER XXIII.

The time passed in a slow, monotonous round of days and nights, of which Beryl took but little heed. She could not have said whether she most dreaded, or hoped for, that next appearance, which would be so momentous a one, for by its results she would either be set free or fully committed for trial.

The court was crowded to its utmost capacity. The gaze of hundreds of eyes was upon her as she was led to her place in the dock, and for one brief moment it seemed to her as if the sickening torture of this public shame was a worse fate than that which had overtaken John Marsden.

Once again the evil face of her accuser, once again she heard her counsel cross-examine the witnesses, and felt the old dread and wonder as to the reality of her position, and the actual belief of these people in the guilt to which their words all pointed.

Not once did she lift her eyes; not once did she glance toward that seat which she knew held one presence battling with agony as great, and shame as towering, as her own.

He wanted to do battle for the outraged, suffering woman, who stood so calmly and so nobly there. He felt every moment was wasted that did not tend to her vindication and release. Ah, at last! The counsel for the defense rose and addressed the court.

"There is no use in wasting valuable time over this matter when I have it in my power to prove that this charge is false from first to last. Nay, worse than that, the man who brings it knows it to be so. That man not only knows who is the real criminal, but is keeping her in hiding. That man had, and maybe still has, in his possession the dagger with which the murder was accomplished; that man, while giving evidence against an innocent woman, knows perfectly well the reason and origin of the crime of which he has accused her. That man is even now trying to leave this court, but he will find he cannot do so as easily as he imagines. Warrants for his arrest are out on more grounds than this, and now, my lord, I will call my witnesses, and they produce the real criminal."

The excitement in the court was intense at this moment. Savona, who had endeavored to sneak out at the first words Mr. Verrinder had spoken, was arrested at the door by Brough himself, and now stood there in the custody of the two constables, while the imperturbable detective advanced to give his evidence as the first witness called by Mr. Verrinder.

Beryl Marsden sank back, white and trembling, in the seat which had been placed for her, and covered her face with her hands in the weakness of an overpowering agitation.

John Brough sworn and examined: "I am a detective officer of Scotland Yard. From information received I went to make an examination of the premises in Old Street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, where this murder has been committed. There had been an attempt at robbery; the person of the deceased and the room were alike undisturbed; neither was there any trace of the weapon with which the crime had been committed. In a recess on the stairs, roomy enough for a cupboard, and dark enough even by day to shelter or conceal either man or woman, I found this piece of stuff. Fragment produced and examined. 'I am in a position to produce the garment from which that stuff was torn, and also the wearer of that garment; to show that she had every motive for committing this crime; that the dagger used was in her possession, and by her handed over to the man calling himself Count Savona; and that the said Count Savona had kept back this evidence, and wrongfully and knowingly accused another person of a crime of which he knows her to be innocent.'"

Then followed the other witnesses: Tom, whose evidence excited a tremendous sensation; the Count's man, Gifford; the detective who had watched the house at Beaconsfield; and finally the order came to produce the accused woman.

A dark, strange-looking creature, hunched and grunted by a constable, now appeared on the scene. She was richly dressed, though oddly, and had a half-barbaric, half-demonic air that reminded one of some tameless desert beast trapped and caught after long pursuit.

"Now," said the detective, "I accuse this woman—native of India, name Matania Paji-Kor—of the murder of John Marsden, late of Old Street, Lincoln's Inn Fields. I have evidence sufficient to convict her, and to insure that Mrs. Marsden shall be set free."

It was wonderful with what ingenuity the acute Brough had pieced it and fitted it into one perfect whole.

Collected together the story ran as follows: "The woman Matania, the daughter of a Rajah, and had resided in Madras. Having lost caste by some grave misdemeanor in youth, she lived a very solitary life. She appeared to be very rich, and had, from her own confession, repeatedly lent John Marsden large sums of money from the time she had made his acquaintance. When his business failed, and ruin and disgrace threatened him, he had suddenly disappeared from Madras, and left no trace. Every one thought he had gone to England. A brief while later, the lady in question disappeared also. From letters found in her possession, and also from the con-

Chance for Eastern Farmers.

The high price of cattle is leading many of our New England farmers to raise their calves and to use more steers and oxen on the farm; and, in fact, to be in line to have more cattle to sell year by year. This is a healthy sign for New England agriculture, as nothing seems to be such clear gain as turning off a pair or two of fat cattle every year. Cattle raising has been too much neglected in the New England States during the past twenty years, and it is a pleasure to note that on many farms cattle husbandry is again coming to the front. No better beef in the world is raised than that which is pastured on New England hillsides, even if it topped off with Western corn, though we believe that cattle husbandry will lead to large areas of corn fodder and corn to be harvested in the farm. Nothing seems to improve the farm faster than increased attention to the producing of beef and raising the necessary fodder crops and grain crops.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Sowing Crimson Clover.

The seeds of crimson clover, when sown in corn, are put in at the last cultivation of the corn, in July or August, according to locality and the growth of the corn. It is the general practice to simply scratch the seed in and while this is often sufficient it results in loss in seasons when drought prevails or even when the season is only a little more than ordinarily dry. Twelve to fifteen pounds of seed should be used per acre, and it should be put in just before the last cultivation of the corn so that the latter process will cover it well. Of course it will not stand the winter in all sections, but if handled in the manner suggested it will do well in most sections where the red clover succeeds. The feeding value of clover hay is high, as is its fertilizing value, to say nothing of the value of having a clover crop on the soil during the winter, so that every farmer should make great efforts to

Acres of Crops Destroyed.

Geneva, N. Y., July 25.—A cloudburst caused heavy damage near Dresden last night. Acres of crops were destroyed, a number of dwellings, barns and other buildings were washed away and several miles of track on the Pennsylvania division of the New York Central were washed out. One house was carried into Seneca Lake. The occupants escaped from the second story windows.

Firemen Kept Busy.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 25.—A violent electrical storm broke over this city and surrounding country today, causing considerable damage to property and vegetation. The fire department was kept busy for the space of an hour extinguishing fires caused by lightning. The flint glass works of James J. Murray & Co. was struck by lightning and partially destroyed. The loss is estimated at more than $50,000.

Lightning also struck one of the smaller oil tanks at the Point Breeze Oil Works. The flames were confined to the one tank.

Tracks Under Water.

Hornellsville, N. Y., July 25.—A hail and rainstorm visited Canaseraga, thirteen miles west of here, last night, doing thousands of dollars damage, especially to growing crops. For a time the water was three feet deep on the Erie railroad tracks.

Water ran down the streets of the village in rivers, cutting great holes in the streets. All the cellars of the town were filled and merchandise could not recover their goods in time to save them.

TO PROTECT COREA.

Independence of the Islands is Guaranteed by Japan and Great Britain.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—A special dispatch received here from Seoul, Corea, announced the conclusion of an important agreement between the British and Japanese ministers to Corea on one hand and the Japanese councillor (Kato, special advisor of the Korean Emperor, on the other, by which Great Britain and Japan mutually guarantee Corea's independence and pledge her support and assistance in all important questions affecting her internal and foreign policy. Corea in return agrees to raise her naval and military establishments to a footing sufficient for her own defense and also in case of raising a foreign loan she agrees to restrict herself to the markets of Great Britain, Japan and the United States.

She further agrees that no foreigners shall be appointed to positions in the Korean state service; that measures shall be immediately taken for the protection of Korean territory and that a protest shall immediately be made against any state or persons attempting to erect works or buildings situated so as to prejudice Corea's scheme for national defense.

Treaty with United States.

Washington, D. C., July 25.—In connection with the report of the new agreement it is pointed out here that the United States already has a treaty of peace, amity, commerce and navigation with Corea, signed in 1882, and providing that "if other powers deal unjustly or oppressively with either government the other will exert their good offices, on being informed of the case, to bring about an amicable arrangement."

The new agreement is regarded in some quarters here as an aftermath to the offensive and defensive alliance entered into between Great Britain and Japan for their interests in the East and as a further safeguard against territorial aggrandizement by any of the great powers in the Orient.

BEER BOTTLERS' STRIKE.

Demand Union Wages, Abolition of Child Labor and Recognition of the Union.

Chicago, Ill., July 25.—The strike of the beer bottlers in three breweries may assume serious proportions. The men on strike are members of a local union chartered by the American Federation of Labor and claim jurisdiction over the bottling of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors, carbonated waters and soft drinks. The National Brewery Workers' Union claims jurisdiction over the beer bottlers, and has had a charter here for them for over a year. The three breweries where the strike was called will not treat with the local union, claiming that heretofore all the Chicago breweries have treated with all the unions of their employees through the Chicago-Milwaukee Brewers' Association, and as such have made their agreements, which they will carry out. Secretary Huebner of the Brewery Workers' Union said last night that only their union would be recognized and endorsed by the American Federation of Labor, while Alex. Ober, business agent of the local union of bottlers, claims that on strike until their union is recognized, union wages paid and child labor abolished in the bottling departments of the Chicago breweries.

FALL OF VALENCIA.

President of Venezuela, with Troops, Embarks for Laguarda—Navy Department Notified.

Washington, D. C., July 25.—The following cablegram has been received at the navy department from Commander McLean of the Cincinnati, dated Laguarda, July 24:

"The President of Venezuela, with troops, embarked for Laguarda at 2 p. m. today. They leave only 300 soldiers at Barcelona. Rumored Valencia has been taken."

FLAMES FANNED BY WIND

Big Lumber Mill on Fire and Surrounding Buildings are in Danger of Being Destroyed.

Seattle, Wash., July 25.—The mill of the Bryant Lumber Company at Fremont, a suburb of Seattle, is on fire and will be a total loss. It is one of the largest mills on the sound. A strong wind is fanning the flames and surrounding buildings are in great danger.

Enlarging the Wheelbarrow.

When wheeling corn fodder and other light stuff, a wheelbarrow's capacity is too limited for convenience. The illustration shows a simple attachment that can be slipped into the barrow on such occasions, to the great increase of its capacity. The side pieces should be hardwood strips. The attachment may be supported by hooks from the strips to the top of the wheelbarrow's back if preferred.

Fertilizing the Strawberry.

From a careful study of the anatomy of the strawberry plant the Wisconsin station is of the opinion that a liberal top dressing with fine manure or a very fertile soil after the fruiting season is the most rational method of fertilizing the strawberry plantation. This dressing protects the crowns of the plants from excessive summer heat and furnishes the young roots with abundant nourishment throughout the growing season. Developing strong plants which are able to store up in the short stems a good supply of reserve material for the first leaf growth the following spring.

Quality of Eggs.

We often hear people say that eggs from some breeds of fowls are richer than those from others, and that those with dark shells are richer than those with white shells. Such differences, or rather, the source of such differences is purely imaginary. Neither the breed nor the color of the shell affect the quality of the egg. It is the food, and that alone, which affects the flavor and delicate quality of the egg. If hens are carefully fed on wholesome foods they will remain healthy, and their eggs will be very different from those laid by poorly conditioned hens.

Hay Crop Substitute.

There is always an excellent substitute for clover and timothy when the hay crop is short, and that is millet. It is a quick-growing summer crop that may be seeded in May or June, and it seldom fails to produce a large yield of hay. It is also one of the best eradicators of weeds that can be used, and it grows so rapidly as to crowd the weeds to destruction. A crop of Hungarian grass may also be seeded down for a summer field of hay, as it may

Mr. Ketcham, of Toledo, the owner of Cresceus, trains and drives his own horse. The dam of Gerald McKinnie (Mary Centivire, 2:12) was a wonderful mare, possessing speed equal to the sire, and some are of the opinion mere. She had to her credit a half mile paced in 59½ seconds. Her family relations are high class and among the fastest. She was purchased by Mr. McKinnie of the Centivire Brothers. The Gerald colt at the time the picture was taken was four months old. He is a beautiful black, with not a white hair on him, and shows a wonderful gain for his age.

To Mend a Broken Leg.

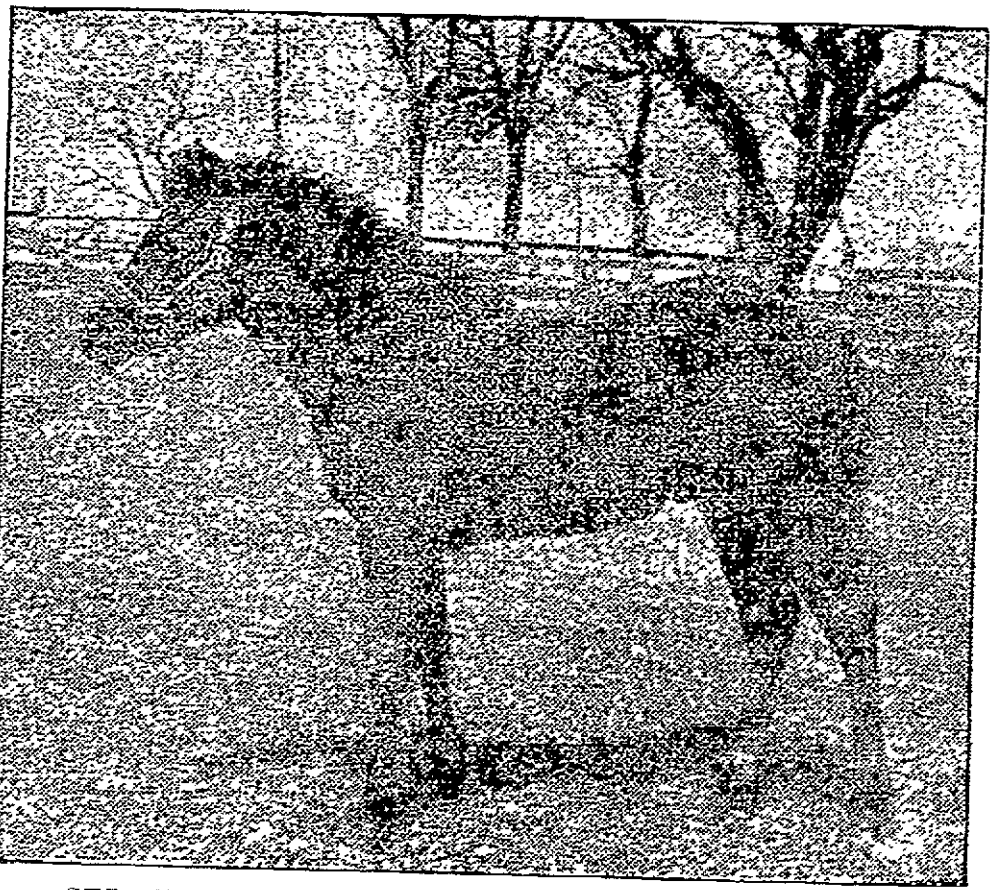

A broken leg of a fine young purebred pullet was mended by winding carefully with surgeon's plaster, which can be bought for a few cents per roll at the drug store. It is not the same as court plaster. Wind closely, the courses overlapping, but not so tightly as to stop circulation. The bird was turned loose at once and received no further care, but the leg seems as good as ever after four or five weeks.—D. H. B. in Farm and Home.

Fruits on Rented Farms.

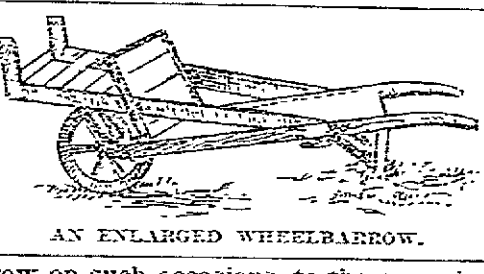

The Metropolitan and Rural Home gives the following sensible advice. Fruits should be planted and kept up on rented farms. There is no reason why a landlord should not take interest and see that the tenants are supplied with small fruits, grapes, etc. The leases should be for a long time and plants and vines should be furnished, the renter to plant and take care of them. Strawberries fruit the year after planting, raspberries the second year, blackberries and grapes the third year and tree fruits from the third to the seventh year. There is no reason why both landlord and tenant should not take an interest in these things.

Lima Beans.

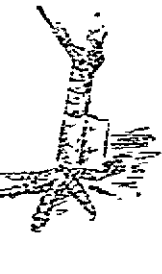

Lima beans demand considerable potash and lime. Wood ashes are consequently beneficial to them, but if ashes are unobtainable the potash salts will be found excellent. A light application of nitrate of soda will give the young plants a good start.

He was universally liked by his neighbors, and had held the office of justice of peace and member of the school board for a number of years before he became too old to attend to these duties. The funeral was held at the Methodist church in Grand Rapids, Rev. W. A. Peterson officiating. The pall bearers were Wm. Kutter, Ben Benson, Andrew King, John Bates, A. Bates and E. R. Griffith. Fast Train Sells Machinery Abroad.

A New York railroad man says that foreigners come to this country for the purpose of riding on the Empire State Express, and, after a round trip to Buffalo, go back home convinced that America is ahead of every other country in the world in regard to transportation. The achievement of this train, says the general passenger agent, has been one great element in introducing American machinery abroad. Its reputation is world-wide. Through it the Russian government was induced to construct the Trans-Siberian railway of Pennsylvania rails, laid on Oregon ties and equipped with more than 1,000 American locomotives. —New York Press.

Garbage Converted into Briquettes.

A process has been discovered in France by which garbage is converted into briquettes. It consists of mincing the refuse from abattoirs, fish markets, etc., straw paper and the like, and adding tar and naphthalene. The whole mass is then mixed in a kneading apparatus, dried and pressed into briquettes. These briquettes have a slight odor of gas, burn brightly and engender heat slowly.

STATE OWNERSHIP.

Next Generation Will Hear Much Discussion on the Subject.

The ownership of the telegraph and the railways by the government is likely to be much discussed in the United States within the next generation, says Charles A. Conant in the Atlantic. There are many objections to such control, but the proposition is capable of candid discussion and does not in itself go beyond the confines of a legitimate political issue. Railway corporations held their privileges under the right of limited ability. This makes each of them an artificial creature of the law. They have obtained by favor of the state another important privilege, in the right to take land for their tracks by right of eminent domain. That the state has the right to revise these grants of special privileges so as to establish a closer supervision over the use and abuse is unquestionable, except perhaps in exceptional instances. If the proposal that the government shall acquire the railways is socialistic or revolutionary it is a form of revolution already achieved in the most conservative countries of Europe—Germany, France, Belgium, Switzerland and Russia. Switzerland has only recently completed arrangements for the acquisition of the chief private lines and their conversion into state railways. The telegraph lines are now controlled by the government in nearly every European country, including Great Britain, and the functions of the postoffice are steadily encroaching upon the business of the express companies.

Chinese Ordination Service.

An American bishop in China writes of an ordination service in which he and four natives took part. At the close, after the congregation had gone out, there was a deafening noise caused by firecrackers, with which the native Christians expressed their joy and their congratulations to the newly ordained.
